

1999 ICAP Mid-Career Professionals

Elmira Bayrasli is the Special Assistant to the Special Cyprus Coordinator at the State Department. Prior to her current position she was Assistant in the Office of the Secretary of State and served in New York at the US Mission to the United Nations. She is the director of the State Department's Model UN Program. Ms. Bayrasli received her BA in Political Science from NYU and her MA in Turkish Studies from Columbia University.

Cynthia Bunton is a Foreign Service Officer presently serving as a Senior Consultant with the Recording Industry Association. Her portfolio includes Foreign Service positions at the American Consulate in Naples and the American Embassy in The Hague. She has also worked as a peacekeeping officer for the Multinational Force and Observers in Egypt, as well as an advisor for the US Department of State and the US Mission to the UN for both Latin America and the Caribbean. Her BA degree was in Political Science from Chatham College and her MPIA was received from the University of Pittsburgh.

Kojo Busia has worked for the past 3 years with USAID. His experience there includes working as a Desk Officer to Romania which entails presenting USAID/Romania's views on strategic, policy, program and budget matters, and working as a Democracy Officer in Nairobi, Kenya. He has his BA in International Relations from George Mason University and his MA and PhD degrees from Cornell University in African Studies and International Development. He has received a number of awards in both professional and academic areas.

Michael Carson has worked with Africare for the past 7 years in Washington DC, Tanzania, and Senegal. He has also volunteered for the Peace Corps, which placed him in Kenya as a Small Business Advisor. His BA in Political Science was received from the University of Denver and his MBA in Finance from Atlanta University. He also has written articles for such magazines as the World View, Tanzania Association of Non-Governmental Organization's SEMEZANA, and Emerge.

Michelle Carter has 3 years experience working for CARE. Currently her position is Assistant Regional Director for Northwest/Artibonite with CARE-Haiti. She has also interned at USAID and UNHCR. She received her BA in Social Psychology from Smith College and her MS in International Development and Sub-Saharan Africa from Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service. She also studied at the Universität Hamburg in Germany.

Carla Denizard presently works as a Food Security Specialist with OIC International. Her work experience includes the House of Hope in Haiti, World Visions in Ghana, World Learning in Nigeria, Academic Associates in Nigeria, and OIC-CI in Côte d'Ivoire. Carla received her BS in Development Economics and African Studies from Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service and her MPS in International Agriculture and Women in Development from Cornell University.

Jacqueline Fields is an Overseas Staff Support Specialist in Washington, DC, with the Peace Corps. Previously she worked as a Recruitment Outreach Manager for Catholic Relief Services and an Analyst for Central America and the Caribbean Regional Office. She is a Fellow with the International Foundation for Education and Self-Help (IFESH). She completed her BS at the University of Vermont and her MBA at Jackson State University.

Richard Garcia is currently an attorney in Denver working in a private practice. Prior to this position, his work experience included California's Rural Legal Assistant Foundation, the Francisco Martinez Defense Committee, the Central American Refugee Project, the Colorado Endowment for the Humanities and other law related positions. He completed his BA in Anthropology at the University of Denver and his JD at DU's College of Law. He is a Fellow with the Kellogg Foundation National Leadership Program and has written articles for the Chicano Law Review.

James Gultry is the Finance Director for the Southeast Wisconsin Professional Baseball Park District. He has held various budget and management analyst jobs, including an internship with the US Department of State in Equatorial Guinea. Equatorial Guinea is also where he volunteered with the Peace Corps. He received his BA in History and Public Relations from Marquette University and his MPA in Public Affairs and Public Administration from the University of Wisconsin. Currently he is working towards his MBA in Finance and International Management from the University of St. Thomas' School of Business.

Arturo Holguín is a Senior Evaluator with the US General Accounting Office (GAO). Currently based in Denver, he conducts studies in the National Security and International Affairs Division. Previously, he worked as a policy analyst with the Washington D.C. government and as a Congressional Hispanic Caucus Fellow researching Latin American issues for the US House of Representatives. He received both his BA and MA in Political Science from the University of New Mexico.

Jill Humphries is currently pursuing her PhD in Public Administration and a Certificate in Gender Studies from the University of Southern California (USC). Both her BA in Anthropology and her MPH in Public Health were also completed at UCLA. While working towards her PhD, she has served as a Teaching Assistant at the International Public Policy and Management Seminar, a Project Director for the African Education Project at RUDO Enterprises, and a Co-investigator for the Electronic Democracy Project at UCLA. She has substantial international experience and has made numerous presentations both nationally and internationally, most of which deal with issues pertaining to Africa and the developing world.

Brioni James presently works as the Foundation Representative for the Inter-American Foundation. Prior to that position, she worked as a Hotel Manager for the Department of Defense and a Professor for both the Panama Canal College and the University of Santa Maria la Antigua. She completed her BA in Economics and International Affairs and her MA in Public Administration at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Mi-Yong Kim has worked in the international field for over 9 years in both public and private sector positions. As an attorney, she currently works for the US Department of Commerce in the Office of the Chief Counsel for Export Administration. Previously, she worked as Assistant Counsel in the Copper and Brass Fabricators Council and as an International Trade Analyst for the US Department of Commerce. Her BA was received from the University of Delaware in Political Science and her JD from the Catholic University Law School.

Seung-hee Lee currently works for the World Bank as a Management Analyst/Consultant. There she reviews and analyzes lending strategies to African countries, manages communication programs, and coordinates cross-sector projects. Before this position, she was a Project Administrator for the JSI Research and Training Institute. Her international experience includes volunteering for the Peace Corps in Gabon and teaching English for the Polish Ministry of Education in Poland. Her BA in French and Art History was completed at Dartmouth College and her MA in International Economics and American Foreign Policy was received from Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies.

Elvis Lewis III is a Bank Examiner for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, where he has the responsibility for safety and soundness regulation of foreign and domestic financial institutions. During his tenure at the Bank, he served as Senior Analyst on the Interagency Country Exposure Review Committee, where he had the responsibility of assessing sovereign economic and financial strength for a portfolio of emerging market countries. He currently serves as the central point of contact for Russian and East European banking issues within the Bank's Financial Examination on Department. Mr. Lewis received his BA in economics from Yale and his MA in public policy from Harvard's Kennedy School of Government where he concentrated in International Trade and Finance. He has lived and worked in the Ukraine and has traveled throughout Eastern Europe.

Shanti Parikh is currently pursuing her PhD in Anthropology from Yale University. Her BS in Finance was received from the University of Virginia and she spent 3 years in Kenya as a Technical Trainer for the Peace Corps. She also has experience as an Inter-program Training Coordinator and a Technical Training Leader at CHP International in Uganda.

Borany Penh is an Information Associate for the Academy for Educational Development (AED). Her position entails assisting in policy analysis and policy dialogue between USAID and the multilateral development banks. She also worked as a Research Assistant with Hagler Bailly Services and interned with USAID. She received her Bachelors in Communication Studies from Northwestern University and her MS in Political Theory from the London School of Economics.

Eduardo Perez serves as Senior Examiner and Supervising Financial Analyst in the Capital Markets and Emerging Issues Units of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco. In this capacity, Mr. Perez examines complex capital markets activities of major global financial institutions and follows financial market developments and their impact on the banking system. Previously, Mr. Perez served as Country Manager for the Foreign Bank Supervision Unit and was responsible for briefing the Bank's senior management on economic, political and financial issues for selected Asian countries. Prior to his tenure at the Federal Reserve, he served at the Harvard Institute of International Development as a Research Assistant on Latin American Projects. Mr. Perez is a Woodrow Wilson Fellow and received his BA in Economics from the University of California at Berkeley and his Master in Public Policy with a concentration on International Trade and Finance from Harvard's Kennedy School of Government.

Krista Riddley has 8 years experience working with Catholic Relief Services in Burkina Faso, the Gambia, Liberia, and Niger in various managerial and project related positions. She currently serves as a country representative in Zimbabwe. Prior to working for CRS, she worked on Capitol Hill as a legislative assistant. She received her BA in Political Science from Iowa State University and her MIA with a concentration in Economic and Political Development from Columbia University School of International and Public Affairs. She also attended the Universite de Cote d'Ivoire on a Rotary Club Scholarship.

Darius Smith is the Director of the Native People's Initiative for Habitat for Humanity International. He is the recipient of the numerous awards and has organized and managed various projects pertaining to American Indian youth leadership, education, and housing. Besides his direct experience working within the American Indian community, Darius has acquired his BA in Communications from Azusa Pacific University and is currently enrolled in a graduate program at the University of Denver. He recently participated with the Americans for Indian Opportunity (AIO-American Indian Ambassadors Leadership Program).

Maria Solomon has worked with the US Department of Commerce for 10 years. Presently she is working on Project Implementation in the office of the Director General. She has her BA in International Relations and Political Science from the University of the Pacific, her MA in International Development from American University, and her JD from the University of California Hastings College of Law. She has also served as an Adjunct Professor at the University of San Diego and California Western School of Law.

Sharyn Tenn currently works as the manager of Network Development Services at the Small Enterprise and Education Promotion Network (SEEP). Her experience prior to this includes work as an Asia Team Analyst and Program Associate at Catholic Relief Services. She has also held positions at the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) and the United Nations Development Program. She has consulted in the field of microfinance at agencies such as Trickle Up, Carver Federal Savings Bank, and ADEMI. She received her BA in International Affairs with a focus on economic development from Columbia University.

Anisa Tootla is presently working as a Budget Analyst with the Corporation for National Service in Washington DC. She has 7 years of financial management, evaluation, and strategic planning experience. Previously she was at the Peace Corps with staff positions as Budget Analyst and Staffing Assistant for the Africa region. Anisa has also served as a health Information Systems Specialist Volunteer in Nigeria. She received her BA in International Studies from DePaul University and is a candidate for the MA in Business Administration from Johns Hopkins University.

Robert Tse is a Senior Policy Advisor in the Outreach Office of the Administration at the Foreign Agriculture Service, US Department of Agriculture. He is responsible for liason with the state departments of agriculture and state legislatures. His work experience at FAS includes developing the USDA Long-term Agriculture Trade Strategy (LATS), comprehensive global consumer food market analysis, and numerous articles and presentations for USDA. He is active in recruiting for FAS and Asian Pacific American Federal Foreign Affairs Council. He received his JD from Boston College, MS in Agricultural Economics from Purdue University, and BA in American History from Brown University.

Matice Wright currently works for Sikorsky Aircraft Corporation in Washington DC. She has recently completed her MPA in Government and Public Policy at Harvard University and received her BS in Physical Sciences and Engineering from the United States Naval Academy. Her work experience outside of the Navy includes service as a Consultant for SRA International and as a White House Fellow with the US Treasury Department. She has received recognition as the Navy's first African-American woman to earn flight wings as a Naval Flight Officer.